MISSISSAUGA, May 27, 2021 – With more older adults exploring retirement living and assisted living options, Revera is proud to offer virtual tours of its many Revera residences across Canada.

Retirement living is recommended for people considering a lifestyle change to a more active and social environment or those looking for assistance with housekeeping or personal care in a safe, secure environment. From personal services and unique amenities to healthy meal plans, Revera offers a variety of independent and assisted living options.

“With the population of older Canadians continuing to increase, more adults than ever will be exploring retirement living options,” says John Beaney, Senior Vice President – Retirement, Revera. “With so many options, it’s important to be educated, especially in light of the pandemic, and our team is here to help.”

From customized programs and events, to healthy meals and services that meet unique needs, care is at the heart of Revera. Virtual tours connect prospective residents and their loved ones with local Revera team members to show visitors around the community safely, answer questions, and showcase what life at the residence is like. Whether people are looking for a new home in their neighbourhood or thinking of relocating to be nearer to their children and grandchildren, virtual tours are a convenient, timesaving way to plan and explore options without leaving home.

“A tour is an important first step in understanding your options and making the choice that’s right for you or your loved one,” says Beaney. “Our virtual tours provide a special opportunity to meet our knowledgeable and respectful team to give you peace of mind as you explore retirement living. No question is too big or too small.”

Revera’s active retirement communities provide a range of amenities, including games and activity rooms, salons and spas, landscaped grounds and paths, as well as a range of accommodations and personalized health and wellness services designed to be flexible and cater to evolving needs.
